

FEATURE STORY SAMPLE

Placeholder PDF sample for a recent-grad portfolio

Overview

This sample stands in for a reported profile, campus feature, or student publication piece. It is meant to show interviewing, structure, tone, and the ability to turn raw notes into a readable story.

Story Angle

The piece follows a student leader who helped grow participation in a community initiative by making the work easier to understand and easier to join. The angle keeps the focus on people, motivation, and practical impact.

What This Sample Shows

1. Interview-based reporting
2. Clear scene-setting and transitions
3. Quotes integrated into a narrative
4. A voice that feels polished without sounding stiff

Structure

Open with a concrete moment.

Introduce the subject and stakes early.

Use supporting detail instead of vague praise.

Close by connecting the story to a bigger idea.

Sample Lines

When students talked about the project, they rarely started with the logistics. They started with the feeling that someone had finally made it easy to show up.

That shift mattered because participation was never only about awareness. It was about whether the invitation felt clear, credible, and worth acting on.

Suggested Uses

Campus newspaper clips

Profile stories

Blog posts

Newsletter features

Portfolio writing samples

Replace this placeholder with a real feature, profile, or reported article when available.