

Creative Brief:

Simmons University Admissions x Studio 5 Student Driven Marketing Agency

- Background / Context

Each year, excited students apply to several colleges in hope of finding their unique path through higher education. Simmons University's Office of Admissions

- Business / Communication Challenge

Studio 5 aims to bridge the gap between soon to be college students and Simmons University as an institution. We plan to highlight the amenities in a visually appealing way to encourage people to attend, utilize its resources and claim their spot at Simmons.

- Target Audience

Studio 5 set out to create materials for an acceptance packet that would grab the attention of both prospective students, as well as their parents.

- Single-Minded Proposition (SMP)

If our audience remembers one thing, it should be what Simmons University has to uniquely offer.

- Support / Reasons to Believe

As a student driven marketing agency, we are familiar with the aspects of applying for colleges and the decision making process.

- Desired Response

The goal for the acceptance package redesign is to excite prospective students and encourage them to attend Simmons University.

- Mandatories

Included will be a redesign of the Simmons acceptance packet pages, bubble mailer, and stickers for new students. There will be an incorporation of some previous elements along with a selection of new, custom art designed by the Studio 5 creative team members.
